

Mr. Loveday, members of the faculty and staff, fellow classmates and other friends:

We, the class of 1964, are here this afternoon after four years of study. In these four years we have taken advantage of the work experience at Berry and have developed a sense of the spiritual from our religious life here. For these opportunities which you teachers and staff have given us we are deeply grateful.

Now we are about to be graduated. Those who will be seniors next year must take on the duties of the senior class and share in its responsibilities.

In our four years at Berry there have been successes and failures but we have reached our goal. This goal is only the basis for more attempts to find happiness for ourselves and for those around us. As we attempt this new goal let us keep the mutual bond between us. With this bond of friendship we can surely work for the betterment of ourselves, our friends and all of mankind.
